

The Sydney Morning Herald presents

"A Vision for Sydney's Health"

We invite you to join us for The Sydney Morning Herald Health Forum on March 9 from 7:00 till 8:30 pm at the Ritchie Theatre, John Niland Scientia Building at the University of NSW, Kensington (enter gate 11, Botany Road).

The forum will be chaired by The Sydney Morning Herald Health editor, Julie Robotham.

The expert panel will be comprised of:

- Minister for Health, Carmel Tebbutt
- Opposition Health spokeswoman, Jillian Skinner
- Greens spokesman on Health
- Associate Professor Brian Owler, Neurosurgeon, Westmead Hospital
- Professor Christine Duffield, professor of Nursing at the Centre for Health Services Management, UTS
- Professor Ian Hickie, Professor of Psychiatry, Brain & Mind Research Institute, The University of Sydney

Hear our expert panelists offer views on their areas of expertise - emergency services, management of hospitals, preventative medicine, mental health, the ageing of the population and of course, the likely impact of the new funding relationship between the Federal and State governments.

Email your RSVP to rsvpsmh@smh.com.au and enter 'Health Forum' in the subject line. The event will commence at 7pm sharp, please be seated by 6.50pm. Latecomers cannot be admitted.

www.facilities.unsw.edu.au/Maps/pdf/Kensington_Accessibility_Map.pdf