

An invitation to participate in a Mental Health Project Consultation

Carers NSW is seeking consumer, carer and service provider perspectives to help inform the development of a new education and training package. The project will be examining the serious risks of untreated mental illness, with a specific focus on psychotic conditions, violent behaviour and its effect on family and carers.

Depending on location and availability, consultations may be one-on-one interviews, focus groups or teleconference discussions. Participation in this consultation will not be reimbursed, unless travel to Sydney is required.

Participants must be comfortable disclosing sensitive information either in a group setting, or one-on-one with the researcher.

All information will remain confidential and de-identified in any reports.
